Coaching for Psychotherapists

Would you like to pause for a second and take a careful, but also courageous look at yourself as a psychotherapist? If the answer is affirmative, you will find this workshop suitable for you.

Coaching and psychotherapy are frequently considered to be two distinct methods of helping people or even paradigms of perceiving the world.

This is why we would like to demonstrate during this workshop how the coaching-focused model of thinking can become useful and inspiring for the psychotherapists, too.

We would like to invite everyone who is thinking about further shaping of their career development, is about to make an important decision in this matter or would simply like to reflect upon the role of working career in their life.

We hope that our meeting will not only turn out to be an interesting experience, but also a source of observations that will prove to be valuable from a personal and professional point of view.
